

Complete this form to calculate your British Columbia mining exploration tax credit (BC METC). If you are completing a return for a corporation, use Schedule 421 of the T2 return. You must be resident in British Columbia on the last day of the year for which you are applying for this credit. If you need more space when completing Part 2 and Part 3, attach a separate sheet of paper

The BC METC is equal to 20% of the amount by which the total qualified mining exploration expenses incurred in the tax year exceed the total of all assistance or reimbursements that were received, entitled to be received, or reasonably expected to be received for the expenses.

Qualified mining exploration expenses incurred after February 20, 2007, in prescribed Mountain Pine Beetle affected areas are eligible for a BC METC equal to 30% of the amount by which the total qualified mining exploration expenses incurred in the tax year exceed the total of all assistance or reimbursements that were received, entitled to be received, or reasonably expected to be received for the expenses. The prescribed Mountain Pine Beetle affected areas are defined by regulation.

If you are a member of a partnership, other than a limited or non-active member, you can claim your proportionate share of the partnership's total mining exploration tax credit. Complete Form T1249, British Columbia Mining Exploration Tax Credit Partnership Schedule. This form is available at www.cra.gc.ca/forms on the Canada Revenue Agency's Web page or by calling 1-800-959-8281.

You must claim your BC METC no later than 36 months after the end of the tax year in which the total qualified mining exploration expenses were incurred.

If you are filing electronically, keep all your documents in case we ask to see them at a later date. If you are filing a paper return, attach this form and, if applicable, your Form T1249.

Part 3 – Qualified mining exploration expenses

Qualified expenses are expenses that you incurred for goods and services that are all or substantially all provided in British Columbia. Expenses must be reasonable in the circumstances and must not have been claimed by another person in relation to the mining exploration tax credit.

Expenses that do not qualify for this credit include:

- an amount renounced under section 66 of the federal Income Tax Act;
- any amount renounced and reported to an investor on slip T101 or T5013;
- any expense related to a mine that has come into production in reasonable commercial quantities, or to a potential or actual extension of such a mine;
- a Canadian development expense or a Canadian exploration and development overhead expense (CEDOE) as defined in the federal Income Tax Act and Income Tax Regulations. A CEDOE includes administration, management, or financing of your business, and salary, wages, or other remuneration or related benefits paid to a person whose duties were not all or substantially all directed towards exploration or development activities. It also includes payments for taxes, insurance, maintenance, and leases for property on which there were no substantial exploration activities;

- a cost of, or for the use of, seismic data referred to in paragraph 66(12.6)(b.1) of the federal Income Tax Act;
- an outlay or expense incurred in the course of earning income if any of the income is exempt income, as defined in subsection 248(1) of the federal Income Tax Act, or is exempt from tax under Part I of the Act;
- an expense incurred in drilling or completing an oil or gas well, in building a temporary access road to an oil or gas well, or in preparing a site in respect of an oil or gas well;
- any personal or living expenses other than travel expenses incurred while you were away from home in the course of carrying on the eligible activities (see Part 3 on the next page);
- an outlay or expense included in the capital cost of depreciable property; and
- any consideration you gave for any share of any interest in, or right to a share.
